Vera Wang Shoes – Shoeless in Seattle

January 28th, 2010 | Author: admin

It is recommended that you first choose your wedding dress before looking for shoes. If you want to take a sneak peak at the article below, proceed with caution, but promise to find a dress first before buying any shoes. For those of you that have already chosen your dress, congratulations! Please tell me which dress you bought in the comments box and what kind of shoes you are going to match to it. Now are you ready to go Vera Wang shoes crazy! Yeah!

You have to keep in mind that the shoe has to go with the dress, which then should go with the climate. Both the climate as in the type of weather and the climate of the wedding, as in the atmosphere that you expect.

Choose from these Vera Wang Shoes

Pimping the Vera Wang pump - Pump up the volume with a gorgeous pump. It is always suitable to start off with the pump as the foundation and then just pop on a jeweled buckle, cute bow or other type of add on that speaks to you. Now you have turned your pumpkin into a carriage. Be careful with pump hybrids, such as T-straps, ankle-straps or Mary Janes even with the perfect heel height.

Swing with the Vera Wang Slingback - For that summer time stylish and sexy statement, I would go for the slingback, closed-toe pump. Since these are more minimalistic than classic pumps you can get squeeze out extra sex appeal from them.

Can you handle the Vera Wang Sandal - Why close your toes when you can wiggle your little piggies under the table with your groom. Ideal for narrow gowns or full dresses regardless of heel height. Just crown it with a jewel to sparkle under the stars.

Even though most Vera Wang shoes were designed for weddings, you can still wear them after wards for pretty much any event. I firmly believe that fashion is always fashionable and thereby recyclable to adorn you on your special day and for happily ever after, even when you play.

Vera Wang Shoes Save Soles

January 21st, 2010 | Author: admin

What makes Vera Wang shoes so special is that they are sooooo comfortable, at least according to my sisters. All three of them wore Vera Wang shoes with their Vera Wang wedding dresses. No shoe nibbles at all like my Mom gets from her designer shoes. If the shoe fits it doesn't necessarily mean you should wear it. Even though Cinderella's shoe fit, it still fell off. Carrie Bradshaw tripped on hers on the cat walk. You don't want this happening on your special day. Here are some tips on what to look for and what to avoid in your search for Vera Wang shoes for your wedding dress.

Top 6 Vera Wang Shoes with Tips

- Always be aware of heel height when selecting a shoe.
- Purchase the shoes after selecting the gown but prior to the first fitting.
- If possible, buy two pair of shoes in case there is a dying mishap or one of the heels falls apart.
- Always consider the shoe comfort factor, especially regarding shoe toe shape and heel height.
- Be aware of what is flattering on your foot. For a size eight or larger, avoid a shoe with an extended toe. For a wide foot, opt for a gradual oval rather than a square toe.
- A plain elegant shoe or sandal looks infinitely more refined than one with garish decoration.

All dresses are made from fabrics and so are the shoes, so while satin shoes dyes best, you have to consider the elegance of silk crepe, faille and Radzmere shoe fabric. Try to buy your Vera Wang shoes last to match the dress better. For those of you with less formal weddings you should look into silk shantung, linen, ultra-thin suede or leather. Since white shoes reveal their workmanship, I can't stress how much importance should be placed on the quality. I think it comes down to balance. A long wedding dress needs are certainly different than that of a short wedding dresses. Thanks for reading about Vera Wang Shoes.
